THE WILLIAM-STREET SHOOTING

DEATH OF THE VICTIM - CORONER'S INQUISITION.

Ludwig Gimbrel, alias Gaul, alias Butcher, the German who was shot through the head on Saturday last, by a heavily-loaded pistol in the bands of William Gehrig, his partner, in their lager beer saloon No. 259 William-street, died in the New-York Hospital on Sunday evening. The fatal occurrence grew out of a slight misunderstanding between the partners, and, as would appear, Gehrig, without provocation, drew his pistol and fired at Gimbrel, the bullet taking effect in the top of his head. Coroner Hills yesterday held an inquest on the body

Coroner Hills yesterday held an inquest on the body of deceased, when the following testimony was taken: William Ripple, residing at No. 257 William street, being duly sworn, deposes and says: On Saturday last, about 12 o'clock. I was in William street, opposite to where I live, with some other boys, when one of them said, "Brumer Fay, come out and let us see "all the crockery that was broken this morning;" we went over and looked down the cellar door and saw the effects of the row which had occurred in the morning; we then crossed back again; Walter Barney, I think it was, then came along and said, "Let's go "over and see the broken crockery;" we started, and had got about half way across the street, when I heard the report of a pistol down in the cellar; when I heard the firing I ran down into the cellar, and saw a large man lying on the sofa and bleeding from the head as if he was dead; I also saw a man have a pistol, which he put up his left coat-sleeve; I then ran up the stairs again, followed by the man who had the pistol in his hand; I saw no one in the cellar but the two men abovementioned, but just as I had got up the stairs two other men came up, one a piano-player; I do not know the names of either of them; the man having the pistol almost immediately ran down into the cellar and tried to lock the door, when he was prevented from doing so by a woman; then he ran up stairs into the street, where he was arrested and taken to the Station-House; I also went and gave my name.

Christopher Eckart, residing at No. 246 William street, being sworn, says—On Saturday last, as I was going to my dunner, I heard a shot fired down the cellar No. 259 William street; I and Mr. Keese went down into the cellar, and saw the deceased lying on the reus, seemingly dead; I only saw a woman down the reus, seemingly dead; I only saw a woman down the reus, when he said yes; Mr. Keese asked him where the cellar was when he said yes; Mr. Keese asked him where there; we went up into the suc prisoner; Mr. Keese asked the prisoner if he shot the deceased, and he said yes; Mr. Keese asked him where deceased, and he said yes; Mr. Keese asked him where the pistol was, when he said here, taking it out from his coat sleeve; Keese then took the pistol; the prisoner was taken to the Station-House; it was a single-barrelled pistol.

Margaret Gimbrel, residing in No.259 William street, being sworn, says—Deceased was my husband; he and the prisoner had some words in the morning of Saturday; about noon when dinner was ready deceased asked me to sit down and get some dinner; I said, "No," that I did not want any; deceased laid down on the sofa and I went to my room and laid down; I fell askeep and was awakened by some one at the door; I got up and saw the prisoner standing by the outside door; he told me to come out; I asked him what for, as I was not dressed; he said dress yourself, then; at this time I did not know that my husband had been shot; I saw some running down the steps; when I looked around I saw that he was shot; I saw no other man but the prisoner when I came out of the room.

Gee E S. Keator, M. D., being duly sworn, deposes of the room.

Geo E. S. Keator, M. D., being duly sworn, deposes and says—Deceased was brought to the Hospital on Saturday, July 18, about 10 o'clock, p. m., in a state of insensibility, produced, as was said, by a pistolshot wound; upon examination, I found that the skull had been fractured near the vertex, almost directly on shot wound; upon examination, I found as the same had been fractured near the vertex, almost directly on the longitudinal sinus; in the wound several pieces of wadding were found, and a portion of the skull was removed; the hemorrhage was profuse, being venous in its character, and coming evidently from the longitudinal sinus; portions of brain matter also oozed out, mingled with blood; a probe passed readily into the hrain, but no ball could be encountered; the hemorrhage was so profuse that it had to be arrested by means of a compress; his pulse was very feeble and his surface covered with a cold perspiration; he remained insensible, having slight convulsions at times, till about 74 o'clock last evening, when he died; I made a post mortem examination of the body, and found a small scale of lead, a portion, doubtless, of the ball, lodged under the scalp in front of the wound; upon removing the calvarium the arachaoid was found to be entirely congested, and both hemispheres of the cerebrum lacerated; the longitudinal sinus was ruptured; the right orbitar plate was fractured, showing that the right croitar plate was fractured, showing that the ball had passed entirely through the brain; no other portion of the ball could be found except the scale alluded to; my opinion is that the cause of his death was injury to the brain produced by the pistol ball.

luded the evidence, which was reviewed to the Jury by the Coroner, after which they retired, and soon returned with the following "That Ludwig Gimbrel, the deceased, came to his death by a pistol shot on the 18th day of July, 1857, at the hands of William Gehrig."

Subjoined is the examination of the prisoner, in which it will be seen that he confesses to shooting the

which it was be seen that he consesses to shooting the deceased when in a state of great excitement.

GLOUCESTER FISHERY.

A writer in The Boston Transcript says the Gloucester will send into the Bay this season, some 300 sail of vessels, manned by nearly 4,000 men. From one-third to one-half the fleet have already sailed, and some vessels are now due from their first trip. About singly vessels, bound to the Bay, sailed this week. In addition to the mackerel received at Gloucester each year, for two years past, more quintals of codish have been landed here than at any other port in the United States. This year the smount will be from 100,000 to 130,000 quintals. The whole country is supplied from this town with fresh and smoked halibut. The vast market of New-York now takes nearly the entire product of the Gloucester fisheries, the cod fish and mackerel being shipped direct to that port in small vessels belonging to Gloucester, Rockport and Cape Cod."

show a general expansion during the week in the movement. The payment of installments of new capi-tal during the past two weeks, and the increase of de-posits, has enabled the Banks to extend their loans to recommodate their dealers, who have needed facilities.

The payments at the Custom-House have increased the demand for money among the importers, and this want has been freely met by the Banks. The increase in loans is $1,340,000. In the specie reserve the increase is $928,000 under a foreign drain of over $800,000, and a Sub-Treasury accumulation of $500,000. The California delivery of $1,520 000 took place on Mon-day last, and counted for the entire week; and there have also been considerable receipts from the interior during the week, of balances in coin, probably half a million to a million in the aggregate. The deposits show no apparent change of importance; but in consequence of the reduced comparative business of the Clearing-House, there is an actual increase of undrawn deposits of $1,360,000, the amount this week

The $284,000 Chicago, St. Paul and Fond du Lac Railroad 8 & cent land grant bonds, advertised to be sold to-day by A. H. Nicolay, were withdrawn in consequence of a satisfactory explanation of a misunderstanding that had existed between the Company and the bolders of the bonds.

The Trenton True American, of Saturday, denies the accuracy of the report of the failure of the Union Bank of Freichtown, New-Jersey. It says the bank is doing a good business, and its circulation is amply protected by the deposit of securities with the State authorities.

Mr Moran to-day accepted the Presidency of the Erie Road, to which he was elected on Saturday. The salary was fixed, as we have before stated, at $25,000 per annum, the largest salary, we think, paid by any corporation in this country. Mr. Daniel Drew having resigned the Treasurership, the vacancy was filled by the election of Mr. Hermann Gelpcke. Mr. Moran enters at once upon the duties of his office.

We hear of some $800,000 in gold engaged for the Wednesday steamer. The Vanderbilt brought $200,000 in doubloons.

There is no change to note in the Money Market. The supply on call is abundant, and paper, which is not plenty of first-class, goes freely at 7@9 ₽ cent. We notice that, while in Boston first-class paper is called "gilt edged," in New-Orleans the money articles denominate it "fire-proof."

The Hon. John P. Kennedy of Baltimore has resigned the office of President of the Northern Central Railway, over which work he has presided since its consolidation. The road is now complete as far as Port Treverton, to which place it will be in full operation early this week. Arrangements have been already made to ticket passengers through by this new route from Baltimore to Niagara. Zenos Baraum has been elected by the Board of Directors to succeed Mr. Kennedy.
